MCL Announces Rule Changes, Postseason Format

Chicago, Ill. – June 30, 2020 – Midwest Collegiate League Commissioner Don Popravak has announced plans for several temporary rule changes during the 2020 MCL season. The MCL will utilize a modified extra-inning format this season. If the score is tied after nine innings, each extra inning will start with a runner at second base and no outs. If the score remains tied through 10, the extra-inning format will be repeated for the 11th and potentially 12th innings. If the score is still tied through 12 innings, the game will be declared a tie. The final batter to complete a plate appearance in the previous inning will be the runner at second base to begin the extra inning. If that run comes in to score, it will count as an unearned run charged to the pitcher who began that extra inning. In addition, the 10-run rule will be utilized this season for all games except those hosted by the Northwest Indiana Oilmen at Oil City Stadium. If a team leads by 10 or more runs through seven innings (or through the top of the seventh if the home team is leading), the game will end. The 10-run rule can also be implemented through eight innings or be invoked in the middle of the home team's at-bat in the bottom of the seventh or eighth if the home team's lead reaches 10 runs. The 10-run rule will not be utilized for Oilmen home games, but will be used for games hosted by the league's other five clubs. The modified extra-inning and 10-run rules are being implemented in the interest of preserving pitching during the COVID-19 impacted season. The MCL is committed to keeping the health and safety of its players, coaches, employees and fans as the foremost priority. The MCL has also announced a change to its postseason format for the 2020 season. The league has traditionally featured a four-team postseason, but this season the top two teams from the regular-season standings will advance to the MCL Championship Series. That best-of-three series will begin on Friday, Aug. 21 and continue through Sunday, Aug. 23 with the regular-season champion hosting Game 1 and Game 3 and the regular-season runner-up hosting Game 2. The Midwest Collegiate League, which features a proud history of aiding collegiate players in their development and has produced numerous professional players including Major League All-Star Paul DeJong, will begin its 11th season on Saturday.

Once the maximum number of meal kit orders has been reached, no further orders will be accepted. "We've listened to feedback from fans and it's clear we have a demand for these meal kits, whether for a fully family or just a couple people," said TinCaps President Mike Nutter. "We miss our fans filling up Parkview Field for baseball games, so this is just a small way to maintain our connection and give fans part of what they're missing, too." The TinCaps began selling meal kits portioned for families in late April and sold out of more than 150 orders in their debut week, leading the team to continue the offering while updating the menu week to week. The success of the program has been featured nationally by the likes of Sports Illustrated and MiLB.com. This week's menu features popular Parkview Field dishes such as grilled marinated chicken, tacos, pulled pork sliders, BBQ beef brisket, hot dogs, and brats. Moving forward, the 'Caps plan to continue making slight alterations to their meal kit offerings each week. See the full menu below.

Parkview Foundation Accepting Donations Toward TinCaps Meal Kits for Healthcare Workers

FORT WAYNE, Ind. — The Fort Wayne TinCaps have announced a partnership with the Parkview Foundation that allows tax-deductible monetary donations to be used to provide TinCaps Meal Kits to Parkview Health frontline workers. "We've been offering the community the chance to provide a TinCaps Meal Kit to a Parkview Health frontline worker since the program's launch," said TinCaps Vice President Michael Limmer. "But this announcement allows individuals and companies to make tax deductible monetary donations to the Parkview Foundation that will be used to provide Parkview Health employees and families most in need with a TinCaps Meal Kit." The TinCaps Meal Kit program was launched in late April as the organization faces the uncertainty of a 2020 Minor League Baseball season. "We wanted the opportunity to connect with our fans and the community," Limmer said. "This program allows fans to bring a taste of Parkview Field home with them at a time where we aren't able to open our doors for fans to come in." The opportunity to donate a TinCaps Meal Kit to a Parkview employee has been a part of the program since its inception, but now there is the opportunity for a monetary donation to be made directly to the Parkview Foundation to provide the Meal Kits. "We are proud to be able to broker the generosity of our community through the Foundation in getting TinCaps Meal Kits to our healthcare team members," said Denise Andorfer, Director of Leadership Gifts for the Parkview Foundation. "We know acts of kindness during these challenging times are so appreciated in lifting the spirits of those working hard to keep our community safe. Generosity is an empowering reminder of our solidarity."

"I'm a single mom with four kids and I feel truly blessed by this," said Brittany Smith, who works at the Parkview Cancer Institute and recently received a TinCaps Meal Kit. "This box had five meals in it with everything that's needed. They were all different meals and everything was absolutely delicious. I'm very grateful for this meal kit and want to thank the TinCaps for doing this."

TinCaps Meal Kits are $100 if portioned for two and $185 (tax included) for a family-size that's designed to feed 4-6 people. Meal Kits can be ordered at tincaps.com. For more information on how you or your organization can donate to this program, please contact Michael Limmer with the TinCaps at limmer@tincaps.com or 260-407-2813.
